The Pickel Chalet takes its name from Frank Pickel, an early pioneer, stockman and prospector who lived and worked on the land now occupied by the Mountain Warfare Training Center. Pickel was found murdered in 1863 in a cabin he had built for himself on the north side of the West Walker River. His murder remains unsolved.

The current club, established in 2003, Replaced the original Pickel Chalet that was created in 1953 from three old Quonset huts, strung together to form a makeshift but functional facility.

The top bar of the Pickel Chalet is an antique, said to have been transported to Virginia City from Scotland during the gold rush. At one time, silver dollars decked the bar top. According to Master Sergeant John Jarvie, USMC, Retired, the bar was transported from the town of Bridgeport to the original Pickel Chalet in the late 1970s.

Numerous traditions were carried on at the original Pickel Chalet during its long and colorful history. One such tradition included the "Ball of Gusto," which was frozen and somehow shoved into the pants of new survival trainers by the more seasoned instructors.

The Pickel Chalet has been the scene of countless Marine Corps Birthday Balls and celebrations of every conceivable kind. Enjoy your time here and be sure to raise a glass to poor Frank Pickel and all the Marines who came before you!

"I am enthusiastic about the location selected for your cold weather training and I am confident that our replacements will be well-fitted for a winter campaign, if they have to fight one."
